

Triton Joins European Battery Alliance

Highlights

- EBA membership provides access to stakeholders across the battery supply chain
- The EBA aims to create a competitive and sustainable European Battery Industry
- EBA membership provides access to capital and business development opportunities
- EBA estimates the battery industry to be worth Euro 250 billion per annum by 2025

Triton Minerals Limited (ASX: TON, Triton or the Company) is pleased to announce that it has joined the European Battery Alliance. The EBA was launched in 2017 by the European Commission with the aim of creating a competitive and sustainable European battery industry by 2025. The EBA is a unique meeting platform and provides the Company with access to a network of key industry players across the entire battery value chain.

Triton Interim CEO, David Edwards said,

“Triton’s graphite is ideally suited to the battery markets and it is fundamental that the Company builds partnerships within Europe, a significant future market for electric vehicles. The EBA provides access to a network of more than 600 stakeholders from the public and private sectors covering the entire supply chain and provides the Company with access to capital as well as business development opportunities”.

About the EBA

The EBA was established in 2017 with key objectives that include:

- Secure access to sustainably produced battery raw materials at reasonable cost.
- Make Europe the global leader in sustainable battery technology.
- Support European battery manufacturing in order not to miss the expected massive growth in market demand estimated to be Euro 250 billion per annum in 2025.
- To create and support new markets for batteries and new initiatives to support sustainable solutions for power, transportation, and industry sectors in line with EU climate goals.
